AUGUST

2005-2006

Dear Temple B'nai Abraham Community,

After returning from their trip to Israel, Sid and Charyl Morginstin brought two beautiful Havdallah candles back as a gift for our Temple. These interwoven candles are used in a ceremony that occurs on Saturday night to mark the distinction between Shabbat and the rest of the week. Together with the spices and wine, the light of the candle is meant to ease the transition back to our regular lives.

The work week is the time when our lives get messy; one interest overlaps with the next. We can no longer just be with our family, friends and home community, but must also join up with the wider world. In looking at the light of the Havdallah candle, we are reminded of the complexity of this transition. Unlike Shabbat candles, which are separate entities, the Havdallah candle makes it impossible to distinguish where one candle begins and where another one ends.

Mordecai Kaplan, the founder of Reconstructionism, referred to this phenomena as living in two civilizations. Writing in the 20s and 30s in New York, he saw Jews struggling to come to terms with their American and Jewish identities. Was it possible to be both American and Jewish at the same time? Kaplan's answer was an emphatic yes. Like with the Havdallah candle, the intertwining of our lives makes us stronger, not weaker.

In today's world, this struggle is even more intense. With the advent of cell phones and computers, we are always in multiple places in any given moment. People interact not just on a local or national level, but on a global one as well. Technology has provided us great freedom, but also great Tsorus (to use the Yiddish word for troubles).

The days of a uniform Jewish community are no longer. While we are the Bordentown community, most of our members were not born in the area. We come from all different backgrounds and all different places. This is what makes us interesting.

In September, Temple B'nai Abraham will be exploring the Interfaith family with a program called Balancing the Jewish Interfaith Family, on Wednesday, September 13th at our Temple between 7:00 and 8:30 PM. Here we will explore issues relevant to families where one parent is not Jewish. We are delighted to also have Eve Coulson, a local expert on issues of outreach to help us in our exploration. While Temple B'nai Abraham is seen as a welcoming place to interfaith families, this is the first time we are focusing a specific program on the topic. I encourage you to come out, bring a friend, and lend your voice to this important discussion. A special thanks goes out to Betsy Ramos for conceiving the idea, and to Jill Popko, Stew Warren, and Rick Shain (our new Adult Ed. Chair) for spearheading the initiative.

Have a wonderful rest of your summer and I look forward to seeing you in September,
Kol Tov

AROUND THE TEMPLE NEWS

Temple B'nai Abraham and Sarah Seidel Sisterhood extend our condolences to Marcia and Michael Rosen on the passing of Marcia's mother Marion Greenblatt and to Mimi Geller on the passing of her brother, Joseph Ellis.

The Sisterhood thanks Josh Zeitz for donating a copy of his book The Flapper. The book cannot be taken out of the Temple but you may read it while visiting the Temple or waiting for your Hebrew School child(ren).

The Temple Board has been busy this summer overseeing the restoration of the inside of the Temple. You will be surprised at the new look and we hope you enjoy the beauty of our rooms. We were unable to save any of the wood or tin paneling. They turned out to be destroyed underneath. Both up and downstairs will be sheetrocked and painted.

Big thank you to a group of dedicated members who have helped with this project, either by sweat equity or their ideas to improve our Temple: The Temple Board, Bonnie Friedman, Robin Affrime, Sid Morginstin, Rhea Goldman and The Building Committee/

The Temple has obtained the services of a part-time Rabbi to help Alex with his heavy schedule. Julie Pfau will be substituting for Alex one weekend per month by leading Friday night services, along with teaching the b'nai mitzvah class one Sunday per month. We will have more information about Julie in our next newsletter.

Hebrew School Open House will be September 10th from 10 to 12.

(3) Date of death in the English calendar. . DO NOT include payment. Once the plaque has been put up, you will be billed.

RELIGIOUS ITEMS BURIAL

No doubt we all have old kippot, prayer books and what ever else sitting in our homes. I am often asked what should be done with them? The proper course of action is to bury them in a cemetery. If you have any of these, please place them in a small box labeled "TO SID: FOR BURIAL". Place the box in the temple (or, drop it off at my house: 849 East Drive Bordentown -- leave it by the BACK door). Once I get a large enough accumulation, I will bring it to Rabbi Leverton of the Chabad of the Windsor for burial. On the kippot: The rule is, once it has been used, it must be buried. If a kippah has never been used it may be thrown out. On books: Nowadays with recycling, one might think that it would be better to place the books with our paper recycling. I did raise this point to a couple of rabbis. All stated that the books must be buried..
